Naessi Studio

Naessi is a design studio based in Rome and founded by Eleonora Carbone and Alessandro D'Angeli in 2020.

They explore cross-connections between objects, ideas, and spaces with a multidisciplinary approach and a collaborative method dealing with collectible designs for galleries and commissioned projects by brands.

Naessi's work focuses on the relationship between the traditional and the contemporary by exploring the connection of material with craft and manufacture. The goal is identifying unexpected connections, creating transverse systems, tracing enterprising conceptual pathways.

Dining Table

Undated Oval Table - Travertino

The UNDATED collection is characterised by the presence of archetypal volumes connected to one another within a formal architectural scheme: a set of aesthetics and design solutions inspired by the observation of Roman stylistic elements and their ongoing stratification.

Each piece in the collection is the result of a process of selection, composition, and redefinition that recalls the practices typical of the Medieval and Baroque periods, during which reusing elements taken from ancient architecture was entirely accepted and practised.

This technique allowed thinking of the past not as a static legacy, but as a living element capable of influencing our present and future. The result of which is a collection that is both contemporary and abstract; one that enters into dialogue with the space in which it is placed.

Made exclusively for Movimento.
