Artist

Henry Baumann

Henry Baumann is an artist living in Berlin, who specialises in using materials that seemingly have no value and turning them into something extraordinary. For Baumann, taking something apart is as interesting as making something new. Never drawing initial sketches but instead working instinctively, he says: "When I'm trying out these materials and testing them, I often start with an initial idea and it fails. But through this failure something else comes. I'm fascinated by this process."

Seating

BOO (Honey)

Each stool from this series consists of 6 bubbles. Henry is guiding the shape, but the exact shape is, because of the manufacturing process, given by coincidence. Each piece is a one-off. The material is resin and any colour combination is possible.
